

Michael J. McGuire

Chief Information Security Officer
Shareholder

LITTLER MENDELSON, MINNESOTA

Michael is a Shareholder in the Minneapolis office and is also the firm's Chief Information Security Officer. Michael is also a member of the firm's eDiscovery Practice Group, which was created to reinforce the firm's commitment to providing its clients with cutting-edge solutions in the rapidly-developing and challenging area of electronic discovery. He advises the firm's lawyers and their clients on electronic discovery issues, including the preservation, collection, review, and production of electronically stored information.

Michael has represented companies in both state and federal courts and has served as trial counsel in jury trials.

Michael is a frequent lecturer on technology, security, and eDiscovery issues, including:

- Development of information security programs for law firms and providers in the legal industry
- The Ethics rules applicable to eDiscovery and information security
- The complexities of using search and retrieval tools and general trends in eDiscovery

Michael also was an adjunct professor of internet law at William Mitchell College of Law in Saint Paul, Minnesota.

Prior to joining Littler Mendelson, Michael was the Managing Director of legal operations for the mortgage division of an integrated financial services company. During his years in house, he helped develop the company's information security program and also built a cross-functional team to in-source nearly all of their eDiscovery processes. Before that, he was a partner in the litigation and corporate departments at a Minneapolis firm focusing his practice on the legal issues arising from the intersection of technology and law, including electronic discovery, privacy and Internet issues.
